KOLB WINS CASE AGAINST STATE

Montgomery, April 25.—Final victory for the late Reuben F. Kolb, former state commissioner of agriculture, and the American Bonding company in the suit brought by the state in an effort to collect $5,000 lost by the absconding of C. H Billingsley, food, feed, and drug clerk during Kolb's term was written by the supreme court Thursday when it overruled the appication for rehearing filed by Attorney General F. Loyd Tate.

Kolb and the bonding company were sued by former Attorney General William L. Martain. Billingsley was charged with failing to account for $10,431 16, but the state sought to collect only $5,000 from Kolb because this was the total amount of the bond. Kolb won the suit in the lower court, the court holding that section 9 of the feed law of 1909, which made the commissioner of agriculture responsible for money not accounted for by the food, feed and drug clerk was repealed by an act of 1911. The supreme court supported the decision of the lower court.

Washington, April 26.—When the house today took up the bill to amend the bill to provide for the registration of persons when they become 21 years of age upon proclamation of the President, Congressman S Hubert Dent, Jr., opposed amendments that would raise the draft age to 40 years.

An amendment was added placing new registrants at the foot of the class to which they may be assigned. The War Department was very anxious to secure the passage of this bill and was adverse to loading it down with amendments such as raising the age limit. FROM OVERSEAS THE Y. M. C. A. CALLS FOR 3,000 VOLUNTEER WORKERS TO HELP WIN WAR

"The leadership of a Y. M. C. A. hut in France has bigger possibilities of national service than most of the bank and college presidencies and big city pulpits in America."

It was with the above cabled statement that E. C. Carter, director of the overseas work of the American Y. M. C. A. in France, emphasized the seriousness of his appeal for men sent out from Paris headquarters. With all welfare, entertainment and physical work and the conducting of the post exchange stores among our soldiers in France, England and Italy in charge of the American Y. M. C. A. at General Pershing's request and the French, Italian and Portuguese governments appealing for trained American Y. M. C. A. workers to perform a similar service for their soldiers, it is obvious that an enormous number of Red Triangle men are needed "Over There" —3,000 new recruits within the next ninety days, or more Y. M. C. A. secretaries than have been sent across during the previous twelve months.

"It is imperative that we meet our obligations to the American and Allied armies," continued Director Carter in his recent cablegram relayed to Southeastern War Work council headquarters of the Young Men's Christian Association at Atlanta, Ga. "There are ninety-six important posts here without sufficient workers. Forty-seven of them are near the front and thirty-eight positions are under shell-fire."

Pratt Offers $100,000.00

Herbert Pratt, vice president of the Standard Oil Company, now in France as an American Y. M. C. A. worker, recently cabled to New York City national headquarters urging that hundreds of men be sent at once.

"Carter and staff are doing remarkably fine work," read Mr. Pratt's cablegram, "but often are too tired because of lack of assistants." Mr. Pratt has offered a personal gift of $100,000.00 to defray the expense of sending more secretaries overseas.

To fill this crying need, special efforts are being made by the National War Work Council at home to enlist secretaries for service under the Red Triangle "Over There." Every section of the country has been especially organized within the past few weeks for this purpose. Governor Whitman of New York, Governor Rye of Tennessee, Harry Lauder and Gipsy Smith, famous British evangelist, are typical of the type of men heading the campaign committees and speaking at mass meetings to enlist Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. secretaries.

500 Men Southeast's Quota

Within the next ninety days, from the seven states of the Southeastern Department—Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee—approximately 500 secretaries must be recruited; 300 for service overseas and 200 additional to fill up the gaps in the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. forces in the cantonments and training camps in the southeast. Dr. W. W. Alexander, director of the Southeastern Department, war personnel board, is in charge of the campaign in this section with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga. Recruiting committees have been appointed in every state.

One of the reasons why it is so difficult to obtain men who are satisfactory for service abroad is described by A. G. Knebel, executive secretary for the War Personnel Board of the National War Work Council, in a recent interview.

"Nothing Tame About 'Y' Work."

"Thousands of applicants rejected include many who picked out the Y. M. C. A. as a nice soft branch of war service. The thousands accepted are those who are willing to face hardship and danger—often under a rain of shrapnel and machine gun fire. There is nothing tame about the Red Triangle work in this world conflict. It is no task for a man faint hearted or of low physical vitality."

Not every secretary who goes overseas is sent to the front line trenches —but he may be. The Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. follows the flag and the fighting men of the Allies everywhere but over the top. The man who goes up to the trenches pitches a tent, erects a sheet iron hut or finds a deserted building, cellar or dugout in which to begin work.

Will Beat His Sons to France.

Most admirable are the ambitions of many fathers of soldiers and sailors to enlist for Red Triangle service, and thus, perhaps, meet their sons in France or on the high seas. The Personnel Board has the record of a man who recently sailed for France, who has one son an officer and another an enlisted man. He is very proud of the fact that he will be "Over There" before his sons.

Recruits for American Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. service overseas need be "only ordinary men and good Christians," as described by Dr. Alexander of the Southeastern Department Personnel committee. Men of almost any profession or vocation are acceptable, but they must be over the draft age—thirty-one years—or have been rejected as physically unfit because of a noticeable defect, such as a deformity, loss of eye or limb, which at a glance will classify the secretary.

Absolute loyalty to the government and sympathy with the cause of the Allies in our fight to the end for a world safe for democracy, must inspire the Red Triangle worker. A man whose father or mother was born in any of the countries with which we are now at war cannot serve overseas. A secretary cannot be accompanied by his wife, no more than can an officer.

Recognized by Military.

Wearing the regulation United States army or navy uniform distinguished by the Red Triangle insignia on the left coat sleeve overseas, but on this side uniformed in olive green of a cut not unlike the British uniform, the Y. M. C. A. secretary has been recognized as a part of the military and naval establishment vitally necessary to the winning of the war. An American officer recently home from the French front said: "Three forces will win this war on land, the army, the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A."

"Clean Up" Week For Red Triangle Collections In May

Atlanta, Ga., April. — "Clean Up" week has been designated from May 1st to 8th. This does not mean the furbishing up of municipalities or the date set for burning rubbish in back yards. It is the date set by the second Y. M. C. A. war work campaign fund organization in the Southeastern military department for boosting collections on the last campaign.

In a report by R. H. King, director of finance in the Southeast, issued on April 15th, it was shown that 73 per cent of the collections had been made. It is his aim to make that percentage climb to 85 per cent by the end of "Clean Up" week and local committees will act accordingly.

Two states have already exceeded the 86 per cent mark; Mississippi and Florida. Georgia comes next with 71½ per cent, the others are as follows: Alabama, 70; South Carolina, 68; North Carolina, 68; Tennessee, 60.

"The mobilization of dollars in direct gifts to be applied to national defense is a short-cut method of winnin the war," said A. H. Whitford, t tional financial campaign dire when told of the "Clean Up" wee' of pushing collections of subscr

ALLIES DEMAND MORE CEREALS

American Meat Restrictions Relaxed to Effect Greater Wheat Savings.

ARGENTINE ARRIVALS SHORT.

Meat Supply Here Considerably Enlarged — Food Administration, However, Warns Against Waste.

The allies have made further and increased demands for breadstuffs, these enlarged demands being caused to some degree by shortage in arrivals from the Argentine. It is, therefore, necessary for the U. S. Food Administration to urge a still further reduction in the consumption of bread and breadstuffs generally if we are to meet our export necessities. The Food Administration has issued a statement explaining the situation in detail, particularly the reasons which lead it, for the purpose of centering effort for the time being upon the cereal situation to relax temporarily the restrictions on meat consumption.

Experience shows, this statement says, that the consumption of breadstuffs is intimately associated with the consumption of meat. For various reasons our supplies of meat for the next two or three months are considerably enlarged, and we can supply the allies with all of the meat products which transportation facilities render possible and at the same time somewhat increase our own consumption. In these circumstances the Food Administration considers it wise to relax the voluntary restrictions on meat consumption to some extent with a view to further decreasing bread consumption.

Conservation of food must be adjusted to meet necessities from time to time, for neither production, nor allied demands are constant factors, nor can any of these factors be anticipated for long periods in advance in the disturbed conditions in which we at present live. While the world situation is not one that warrants any relaxation in the efforts to eliminate waste or to relax economy in food, the Administration desires to secure better adjustment in food balances.

So long as the present conditions continue the only special restrictions we ask are the beefless and porkless Tuesday.

The meatless meal and the porkless Saturday are no longer asked.

The farmers of the United States are responding to the national call to increase hog production. Their increase, to all appearances, is being attained more rapidly. Of more immediate importance, however, are several complex factors which have effected an immediate increase in meat supplies.

The transportation shortage before the government took over the railroads, the bad weather in January and early in February, the large percentage of immature corn in the last harvest and the necessity of feeding this corn as rapidly as possible to save it from decay, have not only resulted in backing up the animals—particularly hogs—on the farms for a longer period of feeding, but have resulted in a great increase in their average weight and will result, with improved transportation conditions, which already appear, in larger than normal arrivals at market for the next two or three months. The weight of hogs coming to the market for the past two weeks indicates an increase in weight of from an average of 203 pounds last year to the almost unprecedented average of 232 pounds, or a net increase in their meat value of over 15 per cent. This is a distinct addition to the nation's meat supply. It therefore now seems certain that we have such enlarged supplies for at least some months to come, that we can not only increase our exports to the allies to the full extent of their transportation facilities, but at the same time can properly increase our domestic consumption.

The response of the public to our requests for reduced consumption of meat during the past few months has been most gratifying, and this service alone has enabled the government during this period to provide such supplies as transportation to the allies permitted.

The Administration also suggests that in those parts of the country where the old fashioned home preservation of pork is still the custom, this practice should be extended at the present time, as it will relieve the burden upon transportation to and from the packing houses and is economically sound as saving the cost of packing operations and at the same time will provide home supplies of pork to last over the months of decreased supplies.

The Food Administration desires to repeat that it does not want to give the impression that these are times when simplicity and moderation of living are not critically necessary, but that its sole desire is to secure an adjustment between our different food supplies and meet changing conditions from time to time and to keep the public fully and frankly advised of its position with the full confidence and reliance that whenever it becomes necessary renewed appeals for saving will met the same loyal response as in the past.

WADE'S ADVICE TO FARMERS

EARLY SPRING DAMAGE.

When spring time opens unusually early as it did this year, farmers get the spirit of extra early planting. There are nearly al ways some adverse weather changes to follow. Sometimes it is frost or freezes but more frequently long cool cloudy spell do most of the damage by rotting the seed just as they are trying to germinate. By far the greatest damage is generally done to cotton seed, as they are more susceptible to cold when plenty of moisture is present and the temperature is low. They must either germinate or spoil and if the temperature remains low for a week, spoil and decay is usually the result.

HOW SEED GERMINATE.

There are three natural conditions necessary to cause seed to germinate. The three elements are heat, air, and moisture all acting in conjunction with each oth er. If moisture is not present, the seed will keep and wait for the moisture to come. If sufficient moisture is present, the seed will try to germinate. If the air is excluded by too much wet soil or the temperature of the soil remains less than forty-eight degrees for a week, the seed will spoil and decay instead of germinating. This condition cannot always be avoided but can be materially helped by planting medium early instead of extra early. Planting shallow is the best means of protection. By having the seed near the surface the excess moisture soon sinks below and the sun's rays restore some heat to the surface between clouds or through the clouds when thin areas are passing. I have never known a stand to be lost when planted shallow to the extent of being barely covered. Late planting when the weather is dry and no indication of rain is the only time when shallow planting is not advisable.

REPLANTING COTTON.

The recent cool cloudy weather has caused many poor stands of cotton. As a general rule farmers plant their best seed first and seldom have anything left for replanting but mixed gin run seed. Many times the stands are so poor that plowing up and planting it over is necessary, if it can be done in due time. I have seen many thin stands plowed up that should have been left and cultivated. I would rather have what many people call sixty per cent of a stand of old cotton than to have two stands of late cotton planted with gin run mixed seed. Many people call ten times too much cotton a stand. A thin stand of cotton is tedious to work, but always makes the largest yield if it is anyways near regular. What is meant by regular is not having too many long skips. It is best to replant a few skips and save your old cotton, if you have what most people call sixty per cent of a stand. Some of the largest yields that I have observed were produced from skippy stands where the skips were planted with cow peas or peanuts. If your first planting of cotton is thin and seventy-five per cent regular, keep it. Late cotton makes good boll weevil pastures.

ALABAMA WILL FURNISH 8022 MEN

Montgomery, May 3 — About one-half of the white men in Class 1 of the selective service classification will be called into the military service May 25, according to notice received by the state military department Friday from Provost Marshal General Crowder. A general call for men was issued by the war department Friday afternoon and the state military department was notified that this state will be required to furnish 6280 white men for entrainment May 25, and five days thereafter, and 2141 negroes, who will be called into service within three weeks after the white men are mobilized.

This call will leave only 7291 white men in Class 1. A tabulation this week showed that this state had 14,111 white men and 12,189 negroes in Class 1, physically examined and ready for service. When today's call is answered by the negroes there will remain in Class 1, 10,048 negroes.

TO THE CITIZENS OF SHELBY COUNTY

The Board of Revenue desires to say to the public that many have already paid their Vehicle License Tax, but many have not yet paid,

The date the Tax becomes delinquent has been extended to May 15th, and it is our earnest request that all who subject to the Tax pay it before it becomes delinquent. We have no desire that any one overlook the matter and have to pay a fee and penalty for becoming delinquent. We feel confident it has been an oversight on the part of those who have not paid.

There are many small bridges on the roads in need of repairs and rebuilding. The Vehicle License Tax will be used for that purpose and for working the roads over which the Licensed Vehicles are used.

We are very desirous of beginning to repair the bridges and work roads with money paid as Vehicle License Tax, and therefore trust that all will pay by May 15. If that is done, we assure you we will soon make a great improvement in bridges and roads where there is any Vehicle License Tax funds.

Yours very truly,
R. J. Miles, President,

UNITED STATES HAS ARMY OF PATRIOTIC PRODUCERS OF FOOD

By J. C. Ford, Alabama Extension Service.

The world is short of food. Millions of people are actually starving to death and millions more are on short rations. This condition is going to grow worse instead of better.

In order that the people of the United States and their friends may not starve, the Government is calling on every boy to enlist in the U. S. ARMY OF PATRIOTIC FOOD PRODUCERS. There is hardly a boy in Alabama who has not a brother, a cousin, an uncle or some near relative or friend now in the war or soon to be. The boys at home are as patriotic as those in the war. Let the FOOD ARMY save the world from starvation while the FIGHTING ARMY saves it from destruction by the Germans.

City and town boys can take part in this as well as those on the farm. Let every boy in Alabama ENLIST as a VOLUNTEER in the FOOD ARMY. If he is already a member of a corn, pig, or other agricultural club, well and good. If he is not, but is in a position to grow a pig or an acre of some crop, he should join at once. If he can not have an acre of land or a pig of his own, he should do anything to grow food for human beings or animals. A boy who grows part of an acre or even a bushel or less, of corn, peanuts, beans, peas or potatoes, or helps with the home garden, or hires to his neighbors for such work, is helping to save the world from starvation and to save the lives of our soldier boys.

Last year some people thought too many potatoes were being grown and others thought that there were too many velvet beans. Some farmers even hesitated to harvest their beans because they thought there would be no market for them. Some thought too much corn was being grown. But we now see that there was really not enough of any of those things. The world needs a bigger crop of all kinds of food this year than was produced last year. It is impossible to produce too much food or even enough. Grow Food.

Boys or girls who can not be members of the regular clubs but wish to enlist in the food army will not be required to keep records or make reports, but they will receive instructions concerning the work they wish to do. There are no age limits for enlistments in the food army outside of the regular clubs. Those who are interested should write to their County Agents or to the Junior Extension Department at Auburn for a card.

GARDEN INSECT CONTROL

By W. E. Hinds, Entomologist, Ala. Exp. Station.

The Colorado Potato Beetle

Only a very few of the most important garden insects can be mentioned in this article. Among them being one of the most common and injurious is the Colorado potato beetle on Irish potatoes. This beetle eats foliage in both adult and grub stages. Therefore it may be easily controlled by dusting the potato foliage with an arsenical poison. The best poison is powdered arsenate of lead, because it adheres much longer and also checks the growth of the plant far less than does Paris green. The dry arsenate of lead may be applied alone by the "pole and bag method," as is commonly done for the cotton leaf caterpillar. Only a light dusting is necessary and it is best applied while the air is still and either early in the morning while there is dew on the plants or late in the evening. While this treatment repeated two or three times during the season will control the potato beetle, it is far better to use arsenate of lead at the rate of 2 oz. per gallon with a fungicide as a spray so as to control both the beetles and a fungus disease known as potato blight. This fungus disease commonly causes the leaves to die and thus stops the growth of the crop before the potatoes are much more than half grown. Yields will usually be doubled where this treatment is properly and promptly used.

The Harlequin Cabbage Bug.

This insect is known also as the "calico back," on account of its very striking orange and black markings. It attacks collards, cabbage and mustard especially and gets its food by sucking sap only. For this reason arsenical poisons on the surface of the leaves will not affect this species and it is also hard to kill with "contact poisons" without using them so strong as to injure the plants. The simplest remedy in the home garden is to jar the insects into a pan containing a little water with a film of kerosene on top. This treatment used best while cool must be repeated occasionally to stop them. They may be repelled from the plant for a time by dusting them with fresh wood ashes where these can be used.

For further information relative to gardening and orcharding write the Alabama Extenson Service, Auburn, Ala., for Extension Circulars No. 7, Common Orchard Pests; No. 11, The Fall Garden; and No. 14, The Spring Garden.

Great Wheat Stocks Isolated.

It's the shortage in ships that is putting the Allies and the United States on wheat rations. Great stocks of wheat are isolated in India, and Australia. At great sacrifice in ship space and use the Allies are forced to secure some wheat from Argentina.

On January 1, Australia had stored 100,000,000 bushels of wheat that was ready for export—but there were no ships. Then came the new crop with an exportable surplus of 80,000,000 bushels. Now Australia has approximately 180,000,000 bushels waiting for ships.

India, at the same time, had 70,000,000 bushels of wheat stored for export. During April 50,000,000 bushels more out of the new crop will be added to the pile.

Argentina closed the last shipping season with 11,000,000 bushels of wheat left in the stock available for export. The new crop will add 135,000,000 to the left over.

It is not a problem that the wheat does not exist in the world—it is entirely a problem of shipping, which has thrown on America the obligation of dividing our stock with the Allies.

ALLIED FOOD SHIPMENTS REACH LARGE TOTAL

A general idea of the quantity of food sent to European allies by the United States from July 1, 1914, to January 1, 1918, is given by figures just announced by the U. S. Food Administration. In that period the United States has furnished complete yearly rations for 57,100,933 people. In addition there was enough extra protein to supply this portion of the diet for 22,194,570 additional men.

The total export of wheat and wheat flour to the three principal allies is equivalent to about 384,000,000 bushels. Pork exports for the 3½ years amounted to almost 2,000,000,000 pounds. Exports of fresh beef totaled 443,484,400 pounds. The amount of food exported to Russia is negligible compared with that sent to the western allies.

ONLY AMERICA CAN HELP.

"On your side are boundless supplies of men, food, and material; on this side a boundless demand for their help.

"Our men are war-weary and their nerves have been strained by more than three years of hard, relentless toil.

"Our position is critical, particularly until the next harvest, but the United States can save us.

"You Americans have the men, the skill, and the material to save the allied cause."

British Shipping Controller.

AMENDING THE NATIONAL CONSTITUTION IS A STATE'S RIGHT

(By Hon. Sidney J. Bowie.)

In 1909 Mr. Bowie was one of the foremost opponents of the State Prohibition Amendment. Today as an advocate of National Prohibition he presents a strong argument for the ratification of the National Prohibition Amendment.

Nationwide Prohibition is the most logical method of dealing with this problem. The war, itself, is a demonstration, but this is true if there had been no war. Formerly the argument against Prohibition was, not that it was wrong in itself but that it could not be enforced. Men who were the staunchest advocates of the licensed saloon said that Prohibition was a great ideal but that blind tigers were worse than the regulated saloon and that blind tigers were inseparable from Prohibition. There was a measure of truth in that argument, although the beneficial effects of Prohibition were so great as to cause a great improvement in the public welfare even when we had it only in local communities.

The question then arises, Why were blind tigers so common in many places where we had only local Prohibition? The answer is, simply: It was because the United States Government was getting a great portion of its revenue from the traffic, and, under the Interstate Commerce Laws of the Federal Constitution, liquor was protected until it had crossed State lines and got into the possession of those who intended and desired to use it for illicit purposes. It was the State policy, looking in one direction, and the National policy looking in another, this conflict between the two jurisdictions that made Prohibition a difficult thing to enforce in many localities. In consequence of this, there has arisen a widespread demand that the Government of the United States should not, either directly, or by indirection, nullify or aid in nullifying the law and public policy of the different States.

It is unthinkable that in this Nation we should have two jurisdictions, one of great, the other of lesser, power—one exercising one will, and the other another. Co-operation, not conflict, is necessarily the true and just solution of the matter.

The argument that State's Rights are involved is a manifest absurdity. This is not an attempt to secure legislation from Congress in a matter over which it has no jurisdiction. This is a movement to amend the Constitution by the separate action of the States themselves. The right of Amendment was expressly reserved in the Constitution. The National Constitution was created by the States. This is an effort of the States to amend their own Constitution to serve their own ends and purposes, rather than to allow them to be defeated. This Agent of the States, which has grown bigger than its creator, has been nullifying the States' will, or impeding it. The States are now exercising their own inherent sovereignty and demanding that their Agent, instead of opposing their will, shall serve it. The right of amendment of the Constitution is a States' right, and he who would seek to prevent it is the true opponent of States' rights.

We have already adopted seventeen Amendments to the National Constitution, and, with one exception, they have all been improvements. When the Income Tax, the most just of all Revenue measures, was being agitated it took twenty years to secure an Amendment to the Constitution authorizing its adoption. It, too, was opposed in the name of States' Rights, but it was opposed by the men of great wealth, whose chief argument was that it could not be honestly enforced, that the men who owed the tax would not tell the truth about their incomes. But truth and justice at last prevailed, and we see now that, without this measure of Federal taxation, we would have had the greatest difficulty in financing this war. In like manner, the chief opponents of the Prohibition Amendment, the Liquor Trust, are claiming to be the special guardians of the rights of the States. The people will deal with them just as they did with the owners of great wealth and their opposition to the Federal Income Tax Amendment.

Again, it is argued that the measure is undemocratic. To secure the ratification of the Amendment it will be necessary to secure favorable action from three-fourths of the States. I cannot see how or why, if more than three-fourths of the States want it, it is an undemocratic thing. As I understand Democracy, it is majority rule. I do not understand how a minority of less than one-fourth of the States of this Union should, in the name of Democracy, oppose the will of three-fourths. If majority rule is not the essence of the Democratic principle, what is?

Again, it is said, that if we adopt this Amendment the Federal Government will soon repeal all our State Suffrage Laws. This is a fear expressed without the slightest foundation. Ratification of this Amendment will make us friends, not enemies, in the North. It will strengthen, not weaken, our position there. The West, in one solid chorus, is ratifying the Amendment as fast as their legislatures meet. They are our friends. They are the people who elected the present Democratic Administration. They are the people who defeated the Force Bill of 1890. The South has nothing to gain by pursuing a policy of narrow provincialism. Her greatest security is, while obeying the voice of her own conscience, to keep step with the voice of the conscience of the balance of the country.

But, not alone is the movement sweeping the South and West, it is invading New England, it is gaining ground there, and, before the time limit has expired, we will see the great States of New York and Massachusetts, as well as Maine and the others, joining the unanimous chorus of approval from the rest of the country that Prohibition is right and that there should be no dissension between our State and our Federal policies, but that both, shoulder to shoulder, should fight to the death this common enemy of mankind.

MEMORIAL DAY PROCLAMATION

Washington, May 11.—National Memorial Day, Thursday, May 30, is designated by President Wilson in a proclamation issued today as a day of public humiliation, prayer and fasting. The people of the nation are asked to gather that day in their places of worship and pray for the victory of the American armies, which will bring a peace founded upon mercy, justice and good will.

Tne proclamation issued in response to a resolution by Congress follows:

"By the President of the United States:

"A proclamation.

"Whereas, the Congress of the United States, on the second day of April, last, passed the following resolution:

" 'Resolved by the Senate, (the House of Representatives concurring), that, it being a duty peculiarly incumbent in a time of war humbly and devoutly to acknowledge our dependence on Almighty God and to implore His aid and protection, the President of the United States be, and is hereby respectfully requested to recommend a day of public humiliation, prayer, and fasting, to be observed by the people of the United States with religious solemnity and the offering of fervant supplications to Almighty God for the safety and welfare of our cause, His blessing on our arms, and a speedy restoration of an honorable and lasting peace to the nations of the earth.

"And whereas, it has always been the reverent habit of the people of the United States to turn in humble appeal to Almigty God for His guidance in the affairs of their common life.

"Now, therefore, I Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim Thursday, the 30th day of May, a day already freighted with sacred and stimulating memories, a day of public humiliation, prayer and fasting, and to exhort my fellow citizens of all faiths and creeds to assemble on that day in their several places and worship there as well as in their homes, to pray Almighty God that He may forgive our sins and shortcomings as a people and purify our hearts to see and love the truth, to accept and defend all things that are just and right, and to purpose only those righteous acts and judgments which are in conformity with His will; beseeching Him that He will give victory to our armies as they fight for freedom, wisdom to those who take counsel on our behalf in these days of dark struggle and perplexity, and steadfastness to our people to make sacrifice to the utmost in support of what is just and true, bringing us at last the peace in which men's hearts can be at rest because it is founded upon mercy, justice and good will.

"In witness thereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United State to be affixed.

500,000 SOLDIERS NOW IN FRANCE

Washington, May 9.—The American army now in France will be well on the way to the 2,000,000 mark by the end of the year.

This forecast has added weight today from Secretary of War Baker's official revelation that we have now passed the 500,000 mark "over there."

His disclosure heartened the war capitol today as nothing else has done, for it recorded in concrete fashion a record of accomplishment in the face of many discouraging delays. The figure represented a generous proportion of fighting men, supplementing the behind-the lines workers who necessarily form a foundation of such an army as we plan. Included in it are regulars, national guard and national army forces. And, the addition to the half million now there is being accomplished steadily. A maximum effort is expected to be reached this month or next, and to continue well along into the summer.

STATE WILL FURNISH 9001 MEN

Montgomery, May 10.—Alabama must furnish 9001 men for the big movement of selective service draftees, which will begin May 25. The quotas for the various counties and local boards were made by the State military department today. The total for the State was 18,140, but credits for voluntary enlistment, voluntary induction and induction reduced the State's total to 9001.

Under the draft call issued for May 25, Shelby county will furnish 90 white men and 22 negroes.

FORTY YEARS MAY BE DRAFT LIMIT

Washington, May 9.—Legislation raising the draft age to 40 years was discussed as a possibility within a few months at a meeting Wednesday of Provost Marshal General Crowder and the House Military Committee. Although General Crowder made no specific recommendations, members of the committee said afterwards that the War Department was considering a plan for changes.

Card From W. B. Seale

I did think I wouldn't enter the race for sheriff this time, but my many party friends have insisted so persistently, I have decided at last to announce. Trusting however that I havn't waited too late for the nomination, but if so, will fall in line for the nominee.

Age 18 years or over. Entrance salaries rangs from $1,000 to $2,000 per annum. Application blanks and detailed information can be secured of Special Examiner Civil Service, Birmingham, Ala., or of the Secretary Local Civil Service Board, Talladega.

It will be of interest to those taking the examination for departmental service, and their parents to know, that a room registration office is conducted under the auspicies of the Government at 1321 New York Avenue, N. W., Washington, and that every room and place for boarding listed with it is investigated before being listed.

Further that this office advises that the average cost of room and board (the two principal meals of the day) with two persons in a room, is $40.00 per month. Every possibe assistance will be given Government employees by this office in securing living accommodations for them. Supplementing this advice, some twety-five Alabama appointees have reported their rooms and board (three meals a day) to cost them from $43.00 to $50.00 per month, the average being less than $40.00 per month.

Naish-Seale.

The most cordial interest of a host of friends centers about the wedding of Miss Mae Seale, the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berry Seale of Shelby, Ala., to Mr. Sevier Naish of Columbiana, which was solemnised at the home of the bride's parents Sunday afternoon, May 12, at 2:30 o'clock. Only the immediate family witnessed the ceremony.

The bride never looked any more lovelier than she did in her going-away suit of blue taffete with shoes and hat to match. Immediately after the ceremony Mr, Mrs. Naish left for Birminghrm, where they will make their future home.

The many frinds of both the bride and groom wish for them a long and happy life.

WOMAN'S LIBERTY LOAN A SUCCESS

In the third great Liberty Loan drive which has just closed, the Woman's Liberty Loan committee of Columbiana sold $6,500 worth of bonds. As chairman I wish to take this means of expressing the hearty thanks of the committee to those who purchased through us or aided us in making sales. It is also our desire to publicly congratulate the men's committee of Shelby county and of Columbiana for the splendid results accomplished by them.

America is engaged in the mightiest war of all times. Nothing in history is comparable to this war. Autocracy and democracy are grappling desperately in a death struggle. And America, glorious America, freedom's chosen land, is destined to be the mightiest factor in the winning of this titanic struggle. Therefore every true American is expected to and will do his or her duty in this, the gravest crisis in the world's history, whether it be over here or over there. The patriotic response of the people of Columbiana and of Shelby county to the call of their government for a loan should make us all feel proud. It is indicative of the fact that our people realize the awful peril of the hour, and stanchly backing with unstinted loyalty and devotion our great president, our courageous boys on the great Western front and our valient, long-suffering allies.

Mrs. Fred G. Koenig,
Chaiman Women's Liberty Loan Committee of Columbiana.

SENATOR O. W. UNDERWOOD TRLLS WHY PROHIBITION AMENDMENT SHOULD BE SUBMITTED TO THE PEOPLE

"We, the People of the United States," Are Words of Preamble and Whole Intent of Constitution Is Based on Will and Expression of the People; Urges State Committee to Submit Issue to Voters.

No graver question has ever been presented for the consideration of the citizenship of our State than that embraced in the pending amendment proposing to surrender in part the police power of the State of Alabama to the Federal Government. It is well worth while to consider the questions involved from a fundamental and historic standpoint and to reach a conclusion as to what direct interest the people of Alabama have in the determination of the matter.

The United States of America as a Nation was born into the world at the same time as its component states. It took the united action of the American Colonies in declaring their independence to create the United States. If the powers of the original nation had remained where the Declaration of Independence put them, no one knows what would have been the power of the centralized government, but the construction of the government did not rest here. Ultimately a written Constitution was adopted by the people of the United States and has been the controlling factor in our Government since that time.

One of the earlier Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States gave in the case of Van Horne vs. Dorrance, tried in 1790, a definition of the word "Constitution," which is particularly important because it points out the difference between the fundamental law, the law adopted by the people, and the law subsequently made by the representatives of the people, the laws of the legislatures.

Judge William Patterson, in this case, said:

"What is a Constitution? It is a form of government delineated by the mighty hand of the people, in which certain first principles of fundamental laws are established. The Constitution is certain and fixed; it contains the permanent will of the people, and is the supreme law of the land; it is paramount to the power of the legislature, and can be revoked or altered only by the authority that made it. The life giving principle and the death-doing stroke must proceed from the same hand. What are the legislatures? Creatures of the Constitution; they owe their existence to the Constitution; they derive their powers from the Constitution. It is their commission; and, therefore, all their acts must be conformable to it, or else they will be void. The Constitution is the work or will of the people themselves, in their original, sovereign, and unlimited capacity. Law is the work or will of the legislature in their derivative or subordinate capacity. The one is the work of the Creator, the other of the creature."

In making the above quotation from an early decision, delivered by a court composed of men who lived through the period from the Declaration of Independence to the adoption of the Constitution and the inauguration of our present form of government, men who were in touch with the sentiment of their times and had full knowledge of the purpose of the Constitution building, my object is to show that the Constitution came from the people and that amendments to it should not be ratified until a direct expression by the people is obtained thereon.

It is clear from the above quotation that the founders of the Republic recognized that the Constitution of the United States came from the people, and not from the sovereign states, that it was the law of the people, and that they, and they alone, have the right to amend or repeal it. I do not mean the legal right, I mean the moral right. Of course, we all recognize that as a matter of convenience in the early days of the Republic the adoption of amendments was placed in the hands of the legislatures of the various states, and has been continued to be exercised in this way down to the present time, but as the Constitution came from the people and is itself the people's law, until the present hour it has always been assumed that the legislatures of the states would voice the sentiment of their people in the adoption or rejection of proposed amendments.

The Preamble of the Constitution clearly sustains the position I take. In opening the drama of our national existence, "The People of the United States" are the first personages introduced. Who were those people? They were the citizens of the Thirteen States, each of which had a separate constitution and government. They declared in the Preamble of the Constitution of the United States, "We, the People of the United States * * * do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America." Then if the Constitution came from the people, belongs to the people, and is the people's law, have not the people themselves the unrestricted right to pass upon the adoption or rejection of the amendments to their Constitution. To me it seems the case is clear. We have forty-eight states in the Union. Each of these states so far as the local law is concerned, is controlled by a separate constitution and in each of these states amendments to their local constitutions are required to be submitted to the people of the several states for ratification before they become the supreme law of the state, and yet we find men today, both in and out of the State of Alabama, who unblushingly are prepared to assert that the plain people of Alabama are unfit and unworthy to pass upon the question of the change in the fundamental law of the land, asserting that these same people may be corrupted or influenced by unworthy motives. It is difficult for me to see how worthy and patriotic men can for a moment consider the weight of such an argument.

The proposed amendment is the first effort that has ever been made since the establishment of the Constitution to directly trench upon the personal rights and personal liberties of the citizens. If this surrender is to be made, should it not be done with the knowledge, consent, and acquiescence of the people who are to be affected by it? Can any man justify the possible leaving of so grave a question to a legislature that may not voice the real sentiment of the people of our State?

I write this letter to urge upon the State Executive Committee that they submit to a vote of the people the question as to whether the pending amendment to the Constitution of the United States shall be ratified or rejected. I know that it is said tha because we have a primary election law in Alabama to govern the selection of candidates that this can not be done, but for many years we had primary elections without the sanctity of law. The State Committee if it is willing and desires to do so can have the question of the ratification of the amendment submitted on a separate ballot, these ballots to be placed in a separate box, or if they desire to do so they can even hold a separate election on this question entirely independent of that in which the candidates for office are chosen.

It is the only way to finally solve the problem. It is the only way in which a solution can be obtained that will not arise at every election at present or in the future to inject itself into the solemn business of governing the State of Alabama.

Let the people of Alabama speak and their decision will be accepted by all. Attempt to smother the voice of the people on these grave questions and you create a volcano of unrest and discontent that ultimately may work to the permanent injury of the State.

O. W. UNDERWOOD.

REDUCE DECAY IN SHIPPING

Loss of Celery and Lettuce While in Transit Can Be Avoided by Careful Handling.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Careful handling and the precooling of lettuce and celery before making shipments will greatly reduce the losses that are often sustained while these perishables are in transit. This information, which specialists of the United States department of agriculture gathered in a recent investigation conducted in Florida, should be of interest to all truck growers, but particularly to growers and shippers of celery and lettuce in the Gulf states.

Decay in lettuce in transit is due largely to "lettuce drop," the specialists found, a disease which appears to enter the head mainly through the lower leaves. Carefully removing the diseased leaves before shipment and precooling the lettuce in cars at the shipping point to a temperature of about 40 degrees F., enables the lettuce to reach its destination in almost perfect condition and to hold up much better on the market than lettuce handled in the usual way.

Precooled celery, with initial icing only, the tests showed, arrived on the market in a uniformly fresh condition with the leaves on the top tier nearly as green as those on the bottom. Celery that was not precooled shipped under standard or full refrigeration showed very yellow leaves on the top tier, which greatly discounted the value of the entire shipment. The cost of precooling and of the first icing of a car of celery was less than the usual charge for full refrigeration. Celery often is injured in transit, the specialists say, because with tight loads it is impossible to secure sufficient free air circulation and rapid cooling. Smaller crates properly spaced and braced with provision of floor racks to facilitate air circulation would help to insure more uniform and rapid cooling.

STORAGE OF SWEET POTATO

Work of Department of Agriculture Specialists Saved Farmers $3,000,000 Last Year.

To reduce the losses resulting from improper handling and storage of sweet potatoes, department of agriculture specialists were last year placed in the regions of large production, and their work, it is estimated, already has resulted in a saving of $3,000,000.

Red Cross Drive On In Columbiana

The campaign to raise money for the Red Cross was launched in Columbiana Monday under the leadership of Mrs. L. H. Ellis. In the afternoon there was en inspiring parade. The Boy Scouts headed the procession, and were followed by the ladies of Columbiana and the little girls dressed in the simple but beautiful regulation costume of Red Cross. How that emblem of mercy, the Red Cross, should appeal to the hearts of every man, woman and child in America! It is the personification of goodness, tenderness and mercy. It is a badge that knows neither favorite nor enemy. Its representatives administer to suffering humanity wherever and whenever found.

After the parade patriotic addresses were made on the court house yard by prominent citizens of the county. Mr. John J. Haynes presided, and the following gentlemen took part in the speaking: Messrs W. L. Acuff, B. F. Wilson, Jr, Judge A. P. Longshore and Rev. A J Notestine. The people of Columbiana are again being asked to give money to this glorious organization in order that the great, christian work in which it is engaged may be crowned with continued success and glory. And we should all remember that to give to this great work is a duty that we owe not only to our country and to our boys in camp in America and on the great, sanguinary battle fields of Europe, but it is also a duty we owe to our God, for the Red Cross represents His angels of mercy doing His work in the tent, on the battle field or wherever wounded, suffering and dieing men are to be found.

The people of Columbiana are going to measure up to this solemn duty; they are going to give not as little as possible, but as much as they can.

CRY OF THE RED CROSS.

Below we are printing a short poem from the pen of one of the great mothers of Shelby county. It portrays in the highest degree the sweetness and the nobleness of the loveable character of this noble woman. In years she is growing old, but in her enthusiasm for her God, her country and humanity, she is yet a girl:

Give of your plenty for our need,
Give 'till we ask no more,
For our heroes brave, we held the line,
And the brunt of battle bore.

Give to the starving orphan child
Tortured by dread and fear,
Food, and strength and happy dreams,
This duty is so clear,

Many of those we love the most,
Suffer on beds of pain,
Racked by fever, wounded by shell,
We must help with might and main.

Can you withhold your precious gold
From men who brave the foe?
Who guard you from the cruel Hun,
From murder, shame and woe?

No! a thousand times the answer
Comes from every mountain side,
City, village, home and hamlet;
Here! my purse is open wide!

Beef is a scarce article in Columbiana at present, there being no beef market here.

The Irish potato crop in this section is the best seen in many years, and the yield is going to be a large one.

Better buy your supply of winter coal during the months of June and July if you intend to keep warm next winter.

There is going to be some hot old times in political circles in Shelby county this year before the campaign is ended.

The wheat crop is looking fine in this county, but there is not enough acreage planted according to our way of thinking.

As usual, a few of the Democrats have started to caucasing, just as they do before every election, but this year they have commenced a little early, and a small caucus was held in Columbiana one day last week by certain Democrats.

Keep your eyes on certain so-called Democrats in Shelby county from now until after the election. We are on to their nasty tricks, and at the proper time we are going to tell the voters of the county what is trying to be done by these few ring leaders in the Democratic party.

The Democratic party in Shelby county can't fool the people any longer into voting the Democratic ticket. The Democrats have done everything but the right thing in Shelby county to get into office.

All young men who have become 21 years of age since June, 1918, will be called upon to register this coming June for war duty. They will be put at the bottom of the list of Class 1 now being drafted into the army.

There are now fifteen Democrats holding office in Shelby county by appointment. What do you think of that Mr. Taxpayer? Under these circumstances, how can you vote a Democratic ticket? If the Democrats in this county could get a law passed they would have all the officers in this county appointed by the Governor instead of electing them by the people, which would put them in office by appointment, as they know that is the only safe route they can ride into office in old Shelby.

Wade's Weekly Letter.

From the best information gatherd from all parts of the State, farmers of Alabama have increased slightly the acreage planted to all crops. The increase in the acreage planted to cotton appears to be about twenty-five per cent as compared with last year. This condition does not appear encouraging, at a glance, in view of the necessity for food and feed and in the face of war conditions. There is a brighter view of the situation, however, when we consider that the acreage planted to food crops has also been increased. The use of commercial fertilizer has been increased fifty per cent, and the acreage planted to cotton, including the increase, is still nearly forty per cent below the acreage planted in pre war times as compared with that of 1914.

The same report shows that the available supply of farm labor is about ten per cent shorter than last year and wages fity per cent higher. The labor supply was fifteen per cent shorter last year as compared with 1916. The whole situation summed up forecasts a probability of the farmers being overcropped by having undertaken too much. Last year was abnormally dry over the State during April, May and June, with the possible exception of a small part of North Alabama. In the absense of packing rains, or a very little rain of any kind, grass and weeds did not germinate rapidly, and crusts did not form repeatedly, therefore, cultivation was easy and the scarcity of labor was not generally realized. We can hardly expect such dry and favorable seasons this year, as two seasons alike seldom ever occur in succession. We have just had a dry February and March and accumulated sufficincy of rain, which might reasonably be expected to fall excessively in May and June. If this condition should occur, farmers will find themselves badly overcropped unless they work over-time and make good use of labor-saving tools.

One of the old-time methods, which is still practiced in preparing cotton to be chopped, is to bar it off with a turning plow going twice to the row. It takes two more furrows with a sweep or four furrows in all to get it ready to chop and then it falls down badly when chopped. Four furrows to the row should be enough cultivation to last a field for a month, if it is done with the right kind of implements and in the right way. Farmers who have two-horse cultivators and smoothe land have gotten away from this slow, expensive method of cultivating a row at a time. Those farmers who have rough land and one-horse farming tools will find it very practical to use the Little Joe spike tooth harrow, with the front teeth removed, on young cotton just coming up. A week later, the spring tooth (Gee whiz) cultivator can be used astride the row. If too much soil is turned towards the cotton, remove the two teeth on each side of the cotton and heat them four inches from the point, put them in a vise, and twist them slightly in different directions. When placed back on each side of the cotton they turn the soil away from the cotton and a fender will not be necessary. As the cotton grows the cultivator teeth can be changed to the opposite sides and the soil moved towards the row as needed. Cotton will chop well and will not fall down badly. I have in many instances used the spring tooth cultivator astride the row twice after cotton was chopped, with occasional flat furrow in the middle with a wide scrape. I have used the spring tooth cultivator astride the row until the plants were too large to permit it. Of course the mule walked on one side as much as possible, but a fair stand will always permit considerable plants ts be trod. This method is as good for corn and peanuts as cotton. A man and horse can cultivate six or seven acres per day as against two acres by the old method, and the character of the cultivation is more successful and satisfactory. With a two hundred dollar mule eating two dollar a bushel corn, a dollar and half or two dollar per day laborer, you can not afford two furrows to the row for a cultivation. Make the spring tooth cultivator and one horse as effective as the two horse cultivator. It can be done, and you will like it when you get accustomed to it

The Maker of Bandages

Red Cross Workers Solve in One Minute the Mystery of the Stony Hearted Mrs. Britt.

By MAXIMILIAN FOSTER

Of the Vigilantes.

A diamond is not the hardest thing in the world. A diamond will cut glass and bore through case hardened, tempered chrome steel, but glass and steel—the diamond itself too—are soft compared to some things. The hardest thing in the world is a hard woman.

Mrs. Britt was such a woman.

I have seen hard women in my time, but never one who was harder. She smiled seldom, and when she smiled it was like the glitter of ice. She spoke infrequently, and when she spoke her speech was the tinkle of hail on slate roofing. She did not look as if she had ever wept in her life.

Every morning Mrs. Britt appeared at the Red Cross auxiliary in upper Broadway. She was the first to arrive in the morning, the last to leave at night. No one knew much about her, though. She was not the sort that make confidences. But that she was a worker—a hard worker—no one would dispute. Efficiency, as you'd suppose, was a trait of Mrs. Britt's.

Are Efficient Women Hard?

Efficiency—dreadful word that! How often hard women are efficient! How often efficient woman are hard! She was both, Mrs. Britt. The moment she came in at the door she had her hat and jacket off. The next instant she was at her place, her mouth set, grim, austere and hard—hard at work. Probably she did her work only from a sense of duty. Hard women always profess that trait. Duty, duty! But, then, few women are as hard as Mrs. Britt.

In contrast to her was Mrs. Farlow. She was soft and womanly and gentle—the exact opposite. She was not very efficient, of course, though she tried. Day after day Mrs. Farlow sat at the work table, her mouth quivering, smiling wistfully, the tears starting in her eyes. The bandages that came from her were often soiled and rumpled, poorly sewn, too, by her poor little trembling fingers. It was a wonder she could even see to sew at all. Again and again what she turned in had to be thrown away.

But no one reprimanded her. No one even let fall a hint that she was more of a burden than a help. The hearts of all those women ached with womanly pity for the poor, stricken mother. Once in awhile, though, in her corner at the back of the room Mrs. Britt would turn around and throw a glance at her. The glance was as hard as rocks—harder, in fact.

Mrs. Farlow had a son in the Rainbow division. The son was the oldest of her four children, and until he went away the little mother had been the happiest woman in the world. Now any day he might be ordered off to France. His picture was in the locket she wore. Every half hour she would stop her work to look at it. Sometimes, her face wistful, she would show it to the other workers, voicing the anguish that with every waking breath she drew twanged hollowly in her mother's heart.

One afternoon Mrs. Farlow's oldest daughter came hurrying in. Her face was white. She had just learned that the Rainbow division had been ordered overseas.

Mrs. Farlow rose, her face tragic. One glance she gave about her, then she collapsed, sinking to the floor. In her fall she overturned a huge pile of antiseptic gauze just torn into squares for Triangulars No. 13.

The room instantly was in confusion. Instantly every one sprang to the mother's aid—that is, every one but Mrs. Britt. She rose and rescued the bandages under foot. Then, her face hard as nails, grimly Mrs. Britt went back to her work. When Mrs. Farlow, still stricken, was led away to her car outside the drab figure in the corner was plugging away as mechanically and methodically as ever. The one glance she threw over her shoulder at the weeping woman was almost contemptuous.

A hard woman, Mrs. Britt; a heartless one, too, it was agreed.

For days nothing was seen at the auxiliary of Mrs. Farlow. It was understood that in her grief and apprehension she was ill in bed. Then one afternoon, pallid and quivering, she came in at the door. She smiled wistfully when the others gathered about her. "Let me work," she appealed plaintively. "Work may help me not to think."

Her Bandages Worthless.

She took a bandage and tried to sew. She made poor work of it, however. Then her head sank on her breast and the bandage slipped from her hands. "I can't—oh, I can't!" she wept.

Once more she was led away.

The same thing happened three or four days later. A week later the mother wandered in again. By now the first of the troops were in the trenches, and her pale, transparent face was like a wraith's. She took a bandage; she tried to sew, and for a third time Mrs. Farlow gave in.

"Oh, my boy, my boy!" she wailed.

The next instant a face was thrust into hers. The face was Mrs. Britt's, and the hard, bony visage was quivering with ill concealed anger and contempt.

"Sit down! Stop it!" said Mrs. Britt. With one hand she thrust Mrs. Farlow back on her chair; with the other she thrust at her the half finished bandage. Her tone as grim as her face, she spoke, and again the sound of it was like hail pattering on slate. "You're not thinking of your son," she said. "You're just thinking of yourself!"

There was a murmur of remonstrance. Mrs. Britt heard it, and she flashed a look about her. But when she spoke again it was to Mrs. Farlow she spoke.

Think of Your Son.

"You're not the only mother in this war," she said. "If you thought a little more about them and a little less about yourself you'd be doing something. You'd be helping your son, for one thing!"

"Why, what do you mean?" gasped Mrs. Farlow.

Mrs. Britt smiled another adamant, icy smile.

"Your son wouldn't die for want of care. Any one of those bandages I've seen you ruin might save his life. Any one of them might save the life of some other mother's son!"

Mrs. Farlow shrank as if she had been struck. She'd never thought of it that way before.

The silence, the grim reserve, which had cloaked Mrs. Britt seemed for a moment to quit her. "I have no son," she said, her flinty voice biting out the words. "I had one, but he died at Guantanamo. It was in the Spanish war," snapped Mrs. Britt, "and there were no bandages—nothing. That's why he died. That's why I'm here now. It's to keep other women—mothers—from becoming the sort of woman I am." A harsh, brittle laugh escaped her. "Oh, I know what you think of me. I've heard what you said. Well," said Mrs. Britt, "my son wouldn't have died like that maybe if I hadn't sat around sniffling and snuffling, never doing a thing."

Then, her lips drawn into a bony smile, she glanced about her once more and stalked back to her place in the corner.

That night Mrs. Farlow rose from her place at the bandage table and sought the table at the back. For the first time that day Mrs. Farlow had managed to create half a dozen bandages, none of which had to be thrown away. Timidly she held out a hand to the drab, dingy figure in the corner.

"I—I've done better today," she said timidly.

Mrs. Britt looked up at her. Out of the corner of one glassy eye something welled, then fell, running slowly down her cheek.

"He was only twenty. He was all had," said Mrs. Britt.

SUGAR DEALERS MUST CUT SALES

CANDY, SODA WATER, SOFT DRINKS, ETC., MAKE WAY FOR CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Wholesale and retail dealers selling sugar have been notified by the U. S. Food Administration that Rule 4 will be strictly enforced. This rule reads:

"Rule 4. On and after May 15, 1918, the wholesaler and retailer shall not ship or deliver sugar to any person engaged in any business of manufacturing, bottling, packing or preparing products in which sugar is used, until he has received from such purchaser a certificate or certificates duly endorsed by the buyer and issued to the buyer by the Federal Food Administrator for the State in which the buyer is located, certifying that the total amount of sugar to be sold or delivered will not give the buyer more than his fair share of the sugar then available for distribution in the United States.

"This rule shall not apply to sales or deliveries to (a) hotels, restaurants, boarding houses, or other public eating places whose products are sold for consumption on the premises; (b) wholesale or retail dealers in sugar holding a license from the United States Food Administration; (c) bakers and cracker manufacturers holding a baker's license from the Food Administration."

Certificates are required by the foregoing rule in selling to any of the following classes: (a) Manufacturers of apple butter, beverage syrups, candy, catsup, cereals, chewing gum, Chili sauce, chocolate, cocoa, condiments, confectionery, explosives, flavoring extracts, fruit preserves, fruit syrup, glycerine, honey, invert sugar, ice cream, jam, jelly, meat products, medicines, preserves, pickles, soda water, soft drinks, syrups, tobacco, wine; (b) Canners, Preservers and Packers of every kind of vegetables, fruit, milk and meat; (c) Soda water fountains and dispensers of soft drinks; (d) bottlers of soft drinks.

Federal Food Administrator R. M. Hobbie, in an interview given to the press today, announced that this rule would be strictly enforced. Any wholesale merchant who violates the rule will have his license revoked at once and retail merchants, not under license, will have their supplies not only of sugar, but of all foodstuffs, stopped at once.

The Food Administration has found it necessary to put on these rules in order that there may be an available supply of sugar for canning and preserving and that housewives may be able to thus save a large amount of perishable food that would otherwise be wasted.

Proprietors of many small soda fountains, confectionery establishments, etc., seem to think that they are not embraced by these sugar conservation rules. But wholesalers and retailers are warned that no matter how small the business, it is embraced in this rule and they must not supply them with sugar unless the proper certificates are delivered to them.

Housewives who desire sugar for preserving and canning are not effected by this rule and may still purchase sugar under the plan already in force for them. By signing a sugar certificate which all merchants, handling sugar, should now have on hand, they can obtain 25 pounds of sugar at a purchase just as they have been doing.

Sugar Rationing for Manufacturers.

"After May 15th no manufacturer, using sugar for manufacturing purposes, will be permitted to purchase sugar without the surrender of authorized sugar distribution certificates issued by the State Food Administrator in the State where the manufacturing concern is located, and endorsed on the back by the buyer."

This announcement made by Federal Food Administrator, R. M. Hobbie, is of vital interest to many manufacturing concerns in Alabama and they should at once take the necessary steps to enable them to secure the proper certificates in order that their business may not be interrupted when the rule goes into effect on May 15th. The only exceptions to the rule are that hotels, restaurants, boarding houses and public eating places, whose products are sold for consumption on the premises and bakers and cracker manufacturers engaged exclusively in the manufacture of their products, are not required to have these certificates in order to purchase sugar. All other manufacturers must have them and can secure them with very little trouble, provided they follow the plans of the Food Administration and act promptly.

Manufacturers should at once apply to the Federal Food Administrator, Bell Building, Montgomery, Ala., for blank forms, which must be filled out and sworn to. When these statements are returned, the amount of sugar which the manufacturer will be allowed, is figured out from a table of percentages of the amount allowed each line of business, which is uniform throughout the United States and which all manufacturers are compelled to abide by.

Non-negotiable and non-transferrable certificates will then be issued by the Food Administrator to the manufacturer for the amount of sugar he is entitled to. These certificates must be signed and delivered to the seller when sugar is purchased. The seller then cancels the certificate and returns it to the Food Administration for record.

Refiners, sugar brokers, wholesale and retail grocers, after May 15th, will not sell or deliver sugar to any manufacturer, except on delivery of these certificates.

It will be readily seen that this plan will require a very large amount of clerical work in the office of the Federal Food Administrator and all manufacturers are urged to apply for blank statements at once and carefully read and study the instructions accompanying them so that there may be no confusion or delay in securing certificates for the amount of sugar the Government will allow them to purchase.

MILLER PUNISHED; COMMISSION CANCELLED

The commission as a federal miller of M. P. Jarvis & Son, federal corn millers at Jackson Gap, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, was summarily revoked by Federal Food Administrator R. M. Hobbie.

This action was taken after a hearing had been held in the offices of the Food Administration and all of the evidence in the case, including Messrs. Jarvis & Son's statement in their own behalf, had been carefully considered by Mr. Hobbie. The evidence secured by Mr. H. Herzgeld, Food Administrator for Tallapoosa county, was to the effect that Jarvis & Son had ground a bushel of corn sent to them by a carpenter who resided in Alexander City. He bought the corn from a farmer living near Jackson's Gap, had it carried to the mill by the farmer and when the same had been ground into meal, Jarvis & Son issued a certificate to the carpenter certifying that he was entitled to purchase 24 pounds of wheat flour without purchasing wheat flour substitutes.

The rules of the Food Administration, copies of which Messrs. Jarvis & Son admitted they had received and had read, provide that no person is entitled to receive these miller's certificates unless they have grown the corn themselves or unless the corn has been grown on a farm of which they are tenants and been delivered to them by landlords for personal use.

The registered miller is required and the certificate which he issues states, that the party having the corn ground and to whom the certificate is delivered has declared under oath that the above facts are true.

After considering the affidavits produced and the written certificate that had been issued by Jarvis & Son, Federal Food Administrator Hobbie stated that the evidence was plain; that the specific rules which Mr. Jarvis and his son both admitted they had in their possession and were familiar with, had been violated; that the authority to issue this certificate was an exception to the nation-wide rule that a pound of substitutes must be bought with each pound of flour and was made for the benefit of the farmers of Alabama who are growing corn; that the federal corn millers who had been registered by the Food Administration and all of whom had taken a solemn oath to conduct their business in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Food Administration, had been accorded the privilege of issuing the certificates on the faith of such oath; that in this emergency no official of the Government could be allowed to deliberately disregard not only his duty as a citizen but a solemn obligation as a sworn official and escape a just and proper punishment for his offense; that in view of the fact that this was the first offense of this kind that had been brought to the attention of the Food Administration and in view of Messrs. Jarvis & Son's expressions of regret for what they had done and the determination to abide by all rules of the Government in the future, he was not inclined to carry their case into the courts.

"Therefore, it is the judgment and order of the Federal Food Administrator for Alabama that their commission as federal millers be and is hereby cancelled and revoked on this May 8, 1918; that any attempt on their part hereafter to issue certificates will subject them to prosecution and that any merchant honoring certificates bearing Register No. C62125, if they attempt to issue them, would also make himself liable to such penalties as might be determined by the Administration."

Messrs. Jarvis & Son were ordered to at once return the commission that had been issued to them and to announce to the public at once that they were no longer members of the U. S. Food Administration and were no longer registered federal corn millers.

PRICE OF ICE MUST BE FAIR

Food Administration Controls Manufacture and Distribution.

The law department has ruled that the manufacture and distribution of ice comes under the Food Control Act. The Food Administration is concerned that there shall be no profiteering in ice and especially that the cost of ice shall be fair and reasonable to those elements of the community which are least able to protect themselves.

No manufacturer of ice has the right to increase prices over last year unless absolute proof can be given as to the necessity therefor. Every ice dealer in Alabama must file with Federal Food Administrator R. M. Hobbie any proposed schedule of increased prices before these increases are put into effect.

Under no circumstances will an unreasonably lower price to commercial users than to domestic consumers be allowed. Ice manufacturers and dealers should take note of these rulings and be careful to submit any proposed increase in prices to the Federal Food Administrator before attempting to put them on.

NOT A COLLECTION AGENCY.

There appears to be an impression in some quarters that the Food Administration will undertake the duty of settling differences between shippers and purchasers of food and feed stuffs. In some instances the Federal Food Administrator has been appealed to and in other cases parties have been told that unless settlements were made their licenses would be revoked.

Such statements are unwarranted. The Food Administration has no power, nor does it desire to usurp the functions of the courts of the land. It is not a collection agency and has never authorized any person to attempt to use it as such. Persons making statements to the contrary should be reported and will be promptly punished.

The Federal Food Administrator for Alabama only intervenes in such disputes when foodstuffs are liable to deterioration or destruction. Food will not be allowed to spoil in cars, warehouses or anywhere else. When necessary to prevent this, it will be put into channels of consumption by the Food Administration. When that is done, the matter of settlement is left to the disputants. They can adjust the matter between themselves or go to the courts for settlement as they may see fit.

THE CULTIVATION OF CORN AND PEANUTS

By D. J. Burleson, Agronomist for Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The three principal reasons why we cultivate crops are:

1. To provide a dust mulch, or blanket, to prevent the loss of water from the soil by evaporation into the air. Water can not easily come up through finely powdered soil.

2. To destroy weeds and grass that use up the water and plant food.

3. Because constant stirring of the soil allows air to circulate through it and changes plant food in the soil to a form which plants can use.

The first cultivation should be given before the corn comes up, or soon after. A spike-tooth harrow does excellent work at this time. This implement should be used every week until the corn is four to six inches high. It is usually advisable to run diagonally across the rows, the teeth being set so they slant backward. If a weeder is available it may be used in the same manner till the corn is eight to twelve inches high. The harrow or weeder breaks the crust on the surface and kills young weeds and grass. One fault with our farming in the South is that we do not use the harrow enough.

Of course, land which has not been properly prepared and planted will need more than the harrow while the corn is young. Sometimes corn under one foot high on clay land which has baked after heavy rains, or which was not well prepared before planting, will need a deep plowing. After corn is a foot high it should never be cultivated deeply, as such cultivation cuts many of the roots, thus hindering the young plants in feeding from the soil.

After corn is too tall for the harrow the two-horse cultivator, or the one-horse spring-tooth, or diverse cultivator should be used. The latter is an excellent implement for cultivation, especially when corn is high. The last cultivation should leave the land nearly level.

PEANUTS should be culivated for the same reasons as corn, but some suggestions as to the method should be remembered. Before the plants come up the land should be harrowed with a spike-tooth harrow to kill young grass and weeds, and one or two more similar cultivations should be given while the plants are small. After this the cultivation should be similar to that for cotton. After the fruit stems appear do not cultivate close to the plants. It is not necessary to cover the blooms with soil.

RESULTS SHOWN OF MANY TESTS OF CORN AS MADE AT AUBURN

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agriculturist.

Variety tests of corn at Auburn covering a period of twenty-two years show that some varities lead or are among the leaders every year. These leading varieties are not the very early nor the extremely late ones: they are intermediate, requiring from one hundred thirty to one hundred forty-five days from date of planting to time of fully ripening.

The type of plant is closely related to yield. When the varieties are classified into groups according to the number of ears per plant, it is noticed that the group having a tendency to produce two or more ears per plant, leads in production and that it is followed closely by a medium prolific group and less closely by the non-prolific group.

The relative number of ears and nubbins that a variety produces is largely an inherent character of the variety, but it may depend upon the seasons, fertility of the land and other factors. In the eleven years that Marlboro was tested, it never grew ears and nubbins so large that it did not require one hundred thirty-eight or more to shell a bushel of grain. On the other hand, Shaw, a large ear variety, never produced ears and nubbins so small that it required over one hundred ten to shell a bushel.

Averaging the average yields of the prolific, medium prolific, and non-prolific varieties of each year, grown at the Alabama Experiment Station covering a period of eleven years, the prolific varieties yielded thirty-four bushels, medium prolific 33.1 bushels, and non-prolific 31.6 bushels per acre.

The large ear varieties have a larger per cent. of cob and husk than most prolific varieties. The average percent of grain on shucked ears and nubbins is about 82. Many of the prolific or medium prolific like Mosby, Hastings, Sanders, Alexander, Whatley, etc., have 85 percent. of grain or more, while some of the large ear varieties have less than 80.

The question is often asked, "What is the best variety to plant?" In the table of yields covering eleven years, it is noticed that the leading variety one year may not lead the next year, because conditions favorable for it may not prevail. However, those varieties that have led or have been among the leaders a number of years can be recommended.

Among the most productive varieties of each eleven years, in the Alabama Experiment Station tests, Hastings and Mosby each were included six times; Sanders and Alexander prolific each five times; Unimproved Henry Grady three times; Weekley, Garric, and Improved Henry Grady each two times; and Stone, Shaw, Davis Poor Land, Jackson Red Cob, Coker E-1, and McGregor each one time. Results of these tests are being published in bulletin No. 200 of the Alabama Experiment Station.

WADE'S ADVICE TO FARMERS

SAVE THE WHEAT

The condition of the wheat crop in Alabama is much better than last year and indicates a generally increased yield. The acreage planted to wheat is fifty per cent greater than that planted last year, The increased yield per acre together with the increased acreage indicate an increase in yield of a million bushels or twice the amount of wheat as was grown in the State last year.

Let me insist on the farmers who have wheat to harvest, that they get their harvesting machinery in the very best condition and avoid waste to the greatest possible extent. It is important that a clean harvest be made and all the wheat saved for the cash value it represents. But by far the greatest reason for saving all the wheat is to assure an adequate supply of wheat bread for the American people and to accumulate a surplus sufficient to take care of our army and the allies in Europe. It is the first and fundamental asset in winning the war.

SAVE WHEAT SEED

It will be necessary for the people of the South to further increase their acreage next fall, and indications are that they will be willing to do so. This will be necessary for the patriotic and safety reasons already mentioned and for distribution by production rather than by transportation. This will relieve transportation facilities for other necessary purposes. A large supply of Southern grown wheat should be saved to be used for seeding purposes to meet the desired increase in acreage that will be sure to come. The acreage planted last fall was shorter than it would have been on account of the shortage of Southern grown seed. Alabama with her increased acreage and probable two million bushel yield will only produce about thirty per cent of her wheat bread supply this year. This is positive and sufficient proof of the necessity of saving the seed and increasing the acreage this fall.

Farmers, for yours and the nation's sake, do not allow a head of wheat to go to waste that can possibly be saved Your diligence in this matter means much for the assurance of sufficient bread for your families, our army, and Allies, and the triumph of the Allied Armies in the titantic struggle for world freedom.

SAVE RYE, CLOVER AND VETCH

Considerable rye, clover, and vetch seed are bought and planted in Alabama each year. Most of the rye is generally saved but clover and vetch are allowed to go to waste, and no chance is afforded for increasing the acreage without sending out the State every year for seed. If farmers in other states were as negligent about saving seed as we are, then there would be no place where seed could be obtained. This is one more evidence of our lack of thrift. It will be good business to save enough clover and vetch seed for your own use and some to sell, if you can possible spare the time. We know and appreciate the strain under which most farmers are laboring, but if you can and will do the things which we have mentioned, now is the time to begin thinking and planning for it.

DEFERRED CLASSES TO GET WAR WORK

Washington, May 16.—Plans to mobilize for necessary war work thousands of men in deferred draft classes have been framed by Provost Marshal General Crowder's office.

Carrying out his policy of "work or fight," Crowder proposes first to weed out loafers hiding behind women's skirts through dependency exemptions and give them the choice of working in a war plant or joining the army. Second, he would transfer to war tasks men now in non-essential industries or in positions wherein women could replace them.

The plan, it wae stated at the provost marshal's office, has been submitted to Secretary Baker. Baker himself says it has not come "officially" before him; that "forward looking persons," however, have proposed such an idea, but it has not been acted on.

The plan is the outgrowth of Crowder's suggestion to raise the draft ages to 40 and 45 for industrial purposes, which was laid aside for the present.

W. E. HARRISON,
Tax Assessor, Shelby County

I kindly ask that every real estate owner in Shelby County compare their 1918 tax Assessments with their deeds, and if you find any mistakes, then some time between now and August 1st 1918, bring or send your deeds, to the Tax Assessors office so that we can correct any mistakes, that may have been made, last fall, our tax books were shipped to Columbia, Ala., instead of to Columbiana, Ala., and remained over there from July 15th to September 15th 1917, therefore you can very readily see that we only had a few days in which to prepare the tax books to begin assessing October 1st 1917, and this why I would like for you to compare your real estate number to learn if we have made any mistakes.

W. E. HARRISON,
Tax Assessor.

Battles Of War

Dear friends from us you have gone,
The battles of war to fight.
May God be with you every one;
May your efforts be for right.

In prayer we'll remember you,
Our thoughts on you will e'er dwell,
We pray your efforts will e'er be
To escape that burning hell.

While you're in the training camp,
Your mothers are each in prayer
Praying for dear boy,
In heaven, you must meet her thera.

The sweet maid you left behind
With tears on her weary brow
Is awaiting the poastman kind,
To get a word from you now.

Her sad face is very pale,
But her love is still the same,
So write her a loving tale,
Of how you aspire to fame.

1918 candidate for Governor

RECORD AND PLATFORM OF JUDGE CHARLES B. TEASLEY CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Judge Charles B. Teasley is making great strides in his race for governor. His campaign has astonished the old time politicians and his show of strength is a revelation to all. His platform is one which appeals especially to the voters of the rural communities. He is not depending upon prejudices of the voters, but is appealing to them on the ground that he is a practical, self-made man, can render the state a service in working out the problems which have thrown the state in debt.

His platform is as follows:

HIS PLATFORM IS IN THE INTERESTS OF THE MASSES OF THE PEOPLE.

To the People of Alabama:

After mature consideration I have decided to become a candidate for Governor, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary to be held on the second Tuesday in August, 1918. The motives influencing me in reaching this conclusion are: First, to gratify a natural ambition to be the Chief Executive of my native State, and, second, the confident hope and belief that I may be of assistance in working out the many great problems which will confront our people during the next four years. In this connection I submit, for the consideration of the democratic voters of this State, my views upon what I consider the more important matters which will demand the attention of the next administration.

TAXATION

The question of taxation directly affects a larger percentage of our citizenship than possibly any other subject to legislative action, yet it is given but little attention in political campaigns. The result in the past has been that when the Legislature assembled it had little or no information upon this question, and consequently continued all revenue matters until the last of the session. In the meantime it proceeded to pass extravagant appropriation bills, and when the time arrived to consider the revenue bill the only object in the minds of the members was raising taxes to meet these appropriations.

Every attempt at equalization has resulted in increased taxes, until the tax payers regard their dealings with the government in the relation of Plaintiff and Defendant, each assuming an antagonistic attitude towards the other. This condition is due to the fact that the people have lost confidence in their State government, and feel that they are not receiving benefits in proportion to the burdens imposed. This antagonism will not cease until the people shall have become convinced that they are getting value received for taxes paid. The Federal Government will for many years exact from the people a large part of their incomes to pay the extraordinary expenses of the present war. Any raise in State taxation would mean almost bankruptcy to property owners.

If elected Governor, I will recommend and urge the Legislature to pass an act extending the present tax values for a term of eight years instead of four years with the right to revalue under certain conditions as now provided by law. By doing this the expenses of the county tax boards would be reduced materially and they could give their attention to property which is now escaping taxation. It would also prevent extravagant appropriations during this period, and would restore the confidence of the people.

The Legislature should provide for a small tax of 15 cents per hundred on all transfers of property recorded in the Probate office to be distributed in the same proportion as the mortgage tax. This would be a just tax and would reimburse the several counties for the expensive records to be kept for this purpose, and would assist in maintaining the courts which are open to enforce the rights created by these transfers of property. The revenue from this source would aid materially in reducing the present floating debt. A small increase in the mortgage tax on long term mortgages, to be paid by the lender, would also produce some revenue for this purpose, and would not be any hardship, as these mortgages are exempted from other taxes.

The Mining Department should be self-sustaining. A small license tax should be levied on operators to pay this expense. The banks are assessed to maintain the Banking Department, and there is no good reason why other departments should not be self-sustaining also.

There are more than $200,000 delinquent franchise taxes due the State, with no effective machinery to enforce collection. There are also more than a quarter of a million of dollars due on lands bid in by the State for taxes. Legislation should be enacted providing for the prompt collection of these amounts and all other uncollected revenue.

All wealth, corporate or individual, should be required to contribute its just proportion to the burdens of government, and be entitled to and receive the equal protection of the law.

The county franchise tax on corporations should be uniform and prorated among the several counties in proportion to taxable values. Under existing law the county making the lowest levy receives the entire tax, which is unjust to others required to pay a license tax.

Ways and means should be provided to meet promptly all obligations of every character due by the State. The Governor should be given authority to make a temporary loan to pay the floating debt, same to be paid out of current revenue. This can only be done by a vote of the people, but is absolutely necessary to place the State on a cash basis.

FEE SYSTEM

All officers, State and County, should receive a stated salary fixed by a general law, with allowance for help sufficient to conduct the offices in a satisfactory manner. Only sufficient fees to defray the salaries and expenses should be collected from the people. This would avoid the necessity of Constitutional amendments and place all officers on a uniform scale throughout the State.

SCHOOLS

The terms of public schools should be uniform throughout the State. At present the terms of rural schools vary from 83 to 160 days. Every white child in the State should have an equal opportunity of an education regardless of residence. Appropriations out of the general fund should be made to meet this situation. The University, and other high institutions of learning, should be fostered but not at the expense of the common schools.

PENSIONS

Confederate soldiers and their widows should receive liberal treatment at the hands of the State. No pensioner, after being entered on the roll, should be stricken therefrom until after personal service and an opportunity of being heard. The Legislature of 1907 deprived all pensioners of nine months' pay, amounting to approximately $600,000. This amount has been to the credit of the pension fund since that time and will remain there until the Legislature passes an act providing for its distribution. While a member of the Senate from Montgomery County, I passed a bill providing for a distribution of this fund, but it failed in the House on account of final adjournment. If elected Governor I will not only suggest, but will urge the Legislature to pass an act correcting this injustice.

CONVICTS

This department produces a revenue to the State of more than $1,500,000 annually. If all the convicts were worked on the public roads, this amount would have to be provided for by additional taxation, which is impossible at this time. They should be placed on the roads gradually. This State received last year $104,000 from the Federal Government for road building, which will be increased each year by the same amount until the fifth year it will receive $500,000. A like amount must be furnished by the State or the several counties before this fund is available. Convict labor can be used in payment of the amount due by the State, and in this way the number of convicts to be used on the roads can be increased each year without cost to the State as the maintenance will not be more than 50 per cent of the value of the labor produced. This work should de distributed among the counties on some equitable basis.

The public school lands containing coal should be developed and operated with convicts. This would withdraw convict labor from competition with free labor, and would produce a much larger revenue than mining coal for private interest. An arrangement of this kind would relieve the general fund and produce large revenue for the schools.

LOCAL OPTION

Local option, which means nothing more nor less than the right of the people to govern themselves, is a cardinal principle of our party, without which democracy could not survive. My convictions are in thorough accord with this great principle. Notwithstanding my personal views on this question, I realize that this is not the time to inject into a political campaign issues which tend to inflame the passions and prejudices of the people. I therefore favor the retention of the present prohibition laws, but oppose any amendment which will prevent any citizen of this State ordering a reasonable quantity of liquor in a legitimate way for his private use. This question should, at some opportune time, be submitted to a vote of the people for final solution.

FEDERAL PROHIBITION AMENDMENT.

Congress at its last session passed a resolution submitting to the several States for their ratification or rejection, an amendment to the Federal Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

Regardless of what the verdict of the people may be upon this question as a State issue, it is inconceivable to believe that a liberty loving people would vote to surrender their rights as free and independent States. In adopting this amendment we surrender to the Federal Government the enforcement of our criminal laws which our forefathers reserved as inviolate. We are now giving in untold millions our blood and treasure to free the world from the dangers of centralized power. If we surrender the blessings reserved to us by our forefathers, our efforts in this great world conflict will have been in vain.

LABOR

Labor is necessary and essential to the upbuilding and development of the resources of our State. The right to organize for its mutual benefit and protection along legitimate lines cannot be questioned. A just law providing for arbitration between employer and employe would in my opinion help the labor situation.

HEALTH AND SANITATION

The jurisdiction of the State Board of Health should be extended over mining camps and other places where large bodies of men are housed on company property.

REFORM SCHOOLS

The reform schools are doing a great work and should be given every assistance by the State. It costs less to reform than it does to convict, and the good women engaged in this noble work are entitled to our aid and encouragement.

APPOINTMENTS

All appointments by the Governor should be only until the next general election, in order to give the people an opportunity to elect their own public servants. These appointments are now made for the unexpired term, with the exception of judicial officers.

CONCLUSION

The suggestions above set forth, if adopted, will furnish ample revenue to run the Government on a sound business basis, and at the same time produce a surplus annually to liquidate the floating debt.

If the policies as outlined are endorsed by the voters, legislation along constructive lines will be necessary to make them effective. Representatives in accord with the wishes of the people on these matters should be elected to the Legislature in order that the several departments may work in harmony for the general good.

In order that I may be free and unhampered in the discharge of the duties of the office, in the event of my election, I will manage my own campaign, assisted by secretaries, to whom I will be under no political obligations. I will not solicit nor accept campaign contributions from any source whatsoever. The legitimate expenses of the campaign will be paid out of my own resources, so that if I am elected, I will be in a position to act upon all matters without fear or favor in the interests of the people.

Having an abiding faith in the wisdom and judgment of the people, I am content to leave my cause in their hands.

If elected to this high office, I promise to render faithful service and safeguard every interest of the State.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES B. TEASLEY.
